Equals Accreditation

Accreditation by Equals is the primary means by which a provider of language courses can demonstrate its compliance with Equals' values as set out in the Charters and with high international standards designed specifically for language learning services. The inspection process, based on the Quality Standards and the Detailed Criteria, verifies that all the promises made to staff, students and other stakeholders are respected by members or prospective members. An institution which meets all the Equals Quality Standards is granted accreditation and becomes an Accredited Member. The accreditation period lasts four years and in order to be re-granted accreditation and maintain membership, members undergo a re-inspection every four years.

Equals accreditation applies to the teaching of all languages in any country. To accredit a wide spectrum of language teaching institutions Equals operates two inspections schemes:

The Equals Inspection Scheme version 7.2 which is addressed at:

- language schools: stand-alone and groups of schools
- foreign language departments of mainstream education schools
- corporate training centres

The Equals Inspection Scheme for Higher Education is targeted at

- universities where completion of language programmes is a requirement for graduation
- English as a Medium of Instruction universities which run foundation programmes.

The scheme is designed to accredit university language centres and university language departments which offer language training programmes to undergraduate, graduate and postgraduate students.

The Equals Accreditation Process

Equals Standards are demanding and therefore Equals offers advice and support to institutions which are considering applying for Accredited Membership.

Equals Advisory Services are designed to be supportive and constructive, and their main aim is

- to help an institutions to review its standards and practices in line with the Equals requirements
- to enable it to make a considered and realistic judgement on whether to proceed with the application for Equals Accreditation
- to avoid the risk of applying before it is fully ready.

The Equals accreditation process consists of four main stages: Self-Assessment, Consultancy online, the Advisory Visit and the First inspection.

Institutional Self-Assessment

The Self-Assessment is designed to facilitate a review of all aspects of the institutions' work and to help it decide whether to

- pursue accreditation by Equals
- seek further advice from Equals in preparation for a successful inspection outcome.

The Self-Assessment process, includes a review of systems, processes and standards of the institution in relation to the Equals Quality Standards and it aims to:

- encourage reflection and initiate an internal dialogue about quality
- facilitate the institution's internal development
- make an informed decision whether and when to proceed with the application for Equals Accreditation and draw up an action plan.

Self-Assessment mirrors the structure of the Equals Inspection Scheme and includes its Quality Standards. The Equals Self-Assessment Handbook for Higher Education Institutions, which can be acquired from the Equals Secretariat, covers the following sections:

- the Self-Assessment Questionnaire
- Self-Assessment Activities
- the Guide to Developing an Action Plan
- the Equals Glossary

A completed Self-Assessment Questionnaire – submitted to Equals – is reviewed by the Director of Accreditation and Consultancy. The conclusion of the Self-Assessment forms the basis of the institution's discussions with Equals about the next steps of the Accreditation process. Priorities and an action plan are agreed as well as the time frame to implement it.

Consultancy online

Online consultancy is based on the outcome of Self-Assessment and is not limited to skype calls and ad hoc help and support. It may also include extensive document revision and support in developing documentation, e.g. course programmes, tests, CPD programmes, performance review procedures, etc. The scope of the online consultancy is agreed with the Director of Accreditation and Consultancy.

Pre-inspection Advisory Visit

Pre-inspection Advisory Visit is not mandatory but highly recommended. It is conducted by one of Equals senior inspectors and its scope and focus relate to the findings from Self-Assessment conducted prior to the on-site Visit. The length of the Visit is determined by the size of the institution and the number of venues, and varies from one to three days. The aim of the Visit is to see 'the institution in action', assess implementation of the academic systems, and conduct class observations to make an informed decision whether a candidate institution is ready for the First Inspection. The written report defines the time frame of the accreditation project and formulates action points, i.e. what needs to be done before the inspection. It also includes suggestions for further improvement.

The outcome of the Advisory Visit is discussed with the Director of Accreditation and Consultancy and, if required, further consultancy on preparation work is provided, e.g. assistance with the review of documentation or training for teachers.

First Inspection is carried out by two Equals inspectors who are familiar with the institution's academic context and the result of the Advisory Visit (if applicable) as well as conclusions from Self-Assessment. The inspection report delivered by inspectors and moderated by the Accreditation Panel, includes a verdict statement, recommendations for further development, and if applicable requirements to meet Equals Quality Standards.

If the inspection is successful, accreditation is granted for the period of four years. It is the university language centre not the wider institution which is accredited by Equals. Re-accreditation is subject to a re-inspection conducted at the end of the fourth year of the accreditation cycle. Accredited members are also required to carry out a mid-cycle self-review and submit a report to Equals to ensure standards are maintained, and to report on changes and new developments.

If the result of the inspection is a referral, an institution is given a deadline to meet the requirements. A follow up inspection is required only if it is the quality of teaching which is not compliant with the Equals Standards. In the case of other areas of the Scheme submission of documentation is sufficient.

Equals Inspections

Methodology

Equals inspections are based on a principled and effective methodology, which combines direct observation of all aspects of the institution's activities with inspection of documentation and other evidence. The Equals inspection includes a site visit which is conducted by 2 inspectors and generally lasts 2 days (3-4 days in the case of larger centres). Inspectors look for evidence of systems which can ensure sustained and consistent quality of services.

The inspection verifies that all the promises made to students, staff and other stakeholders are respected. Inspectors evaluate whether the institution complies with the Equals Quality Standards in a given Category referring to detailed criteria.

Equals Inspectors

Equals inspectors are expert practitioners with considerable experience in management of language education institutions. Before being appointed they undergo training and must demonstrate a good knowledge of the Equals Inspection Scheme together with the capacity to objectively evaluate an institution's performance against the Quality Standards. They are required to comply with the professional Code of Conduct, follow the established inspection procedures and respect the Scheme's principles.

Principles

The aims and ethos of Equals govern the way in which inspections are managed and carried out and the following fundamental principles are to be respected by institutions and Equals inspectors.

Confidentiality

Equals promises to fully respect the right of institutions to confidentiality with respect to all aspects of their operation and of their inspections and re-inspections. All written and orally communicated information about the institution undergoing inspection – including the outcome of the inspection and any requirements and recommendations – is kept confidential and only discussed between the inspectors concerned, the Accreditation Panel and the Director of Accreditation and Consultancy. Equals does not publish inspection reports and such reports are only provided to the institution under inspection. Inspection reports are kept on file in the Equals Secretariat for further reference and rules of confidentiality apply as stated in the Equals Privacy Policy. Equals publicly announces the names of new Accredited Members only when accreditation has been granted following a successful inspection.

Impartiality and fairness

Complete impartiality and fairness are the overriding principles of Equals inspections and reports. The inspection is a formal process and a professional distance between the inspectors and the institution's staff is maintained, with over-familiarity avoided at all times. Inspectors must not allow themselves to be influenced or biased by prior knowledge of any staff concerned.

Consistency and reliability of inspections

In order for inspections to be valid and reliable, the Equals Quality Standards must be applied consistently across different institutions, and from inspection to inspection, including re-inspections of the same institution. Consistency and reliability of inspections is promoted in a number of ways:

- transparent and rigorous criteria for selecting inspectors, together with a thorough induction and regular compulsory training and standardisation;
- the grading system which is based on clearly defined Quality Standards and detailed criteria;
- thorough moderation of all reports by the Accreditation Panel, which is responsible for ensuring that standards are applied consistently;
- the right of institutions to comment on the factual content of the inspection report before it is finalised; the Accreditation Panel and the Director of Accreditation and Consultancy consider any comments with the inspectors, who amend the report when appropriate.

Comprehensiveness

The Equals Quality Standards cover every aspect of the institution's work. All the Standards must be met, and each relevant aspect of the operation is inspected and assessed with equal thoroughness.

Professional collegiality and support

Equals inspections are carried out in a spirit of professional collegiality and supportiveness. The primary purpose of the inspection is to establish that Equals' Standards are being met. However, the inspection process is also an opportunity for professional exchange between inspectors and inspected, often involving a consultative element. Regardless of how, in the inspectors' view, the inspection is going, inspectors are required to remain objective and non-judgemental at all times.

Continuous improvement

One aim of the inspection process is to 'hold up a mirror' to the institution and to enable it to benefit from the experience and to improve where possible, whatever the outcome. In addition to providing the evidence needed for Equals accreditation, the inspection plays a key role in maintaining the momentum of continuous improvement, and providing independent advice as to how this may be achieved. Consultative advice discussed during the inspection is expressed as 'Recommendations' in the report.

The scope of the Equals Inspection

Equals accreditation applies to the language centre, the school of languages or a language department which is an integral part of the university later referred to as the wider institution. All activities of the language centre related to the provision of language learning services must be included in the inspection, as well as all sites where teaching takes place.

Equals inspections therefore include:

- all language courses and programmes delivered face-to-face and online
- teacher training courses that are not separately accredited by international awarding bodies recognised by Equals

Teacher-training (e.g. Cambridge Certificate in English Language Teaching to Adults – CELTA) and other courses, which have internationally recognised awarding bodies or are accredited by international bodies recognised by Equals, are not part of the Equals inspection and classes/training sessions are not observed. However, the staff teaching on any such courses should be included in teacher focus groups and/or other meetings.

Inspection procedures

The inspectors look for evidence that all services provided by the institution meet the Equals Quality Standards. They:

- hold meetings with management and academic managers
- meet focus groups of students and teachers, and where applicable, other stakeholders
- interview members of staff
- observe a representative selection of the teaching
- check that academic management and administrative systems work in practice
- check key documentation – including material stored online and the main website
- inspect premises and resources.

Documentary evidence

Gathering evidence of compliance with the Quality Standards by inspecting documentation and online applications is an essential element of the inspection. Institutions are required to provide a range of supporting documentation in advance and during the inspection visit.

Meetings

The meetings held during the inspection provide further important evidence of compliance with the Quality Standards and help to assess the way the institution operates in practice.

The Equals Quality Standards: Overview

The Equals Quality Standards are derived from the Equals Charters and are a practical expression of the philosophy of the Charters. They are arranged in 12 Categories, grouped in 5 Sections, which correspond to different aspects of the language centre's activities. In the Inspection Scheme there are references to the language centre and to the wider institution. The language centre refers to a unit, i.e. a school of foreign languages, a language centre or a department which is an integral part of an institution of higher education. The wider institution refers to an institution of higher education, i.e. a university or similar of which the language centre is an integral part.

- 5.6 There are systems for teacher induction and support which ensure the effective implementation of the language centre’s educational objectives.

Inspection procedures

Inspectors check how the language centre’s educational philosophy informs course design, and how closely day to day course planning relates to prescribed learning objectives. They also check systems for teacher induction and support. Evidence of compliance is gathered by reviewing academic planning documents and at meetings with academic managers and teachers. Lesson observation is the practical realisation of academic management systems and also contributes important evidence for this Category.

- 6.5 Students have the opportunity to develop transferable study skills and to share responsibility for their own learning.

Inspection procedures

Inspection procedures for this Category include lesson observation, reviewing lesson plans and other academic planning documents and meetings with academic managers, teachers and students.

Lesson observation

Inspectors aim to observe all levels and course types, including synchronous and asynchronous online teaching. Teacher-training courses which are accredited by internationally recognised awarding bodies recognised by Equals (e.g. CELTA), are not part of the inspection and classes/training sessions are not observed. However, the staff teaching on any such courses are included in meetings with academic managers and/or with teachers.

- Inspectors attempt to observe as many as possible of the teaching team and in smaller language centres this usually includes all teachers. In a big multi-centre language centre it may be necessary to do some sampling. Inspectors aim to observe at least 70% of all teachers timetabled to teach during the inspection. Inspectors should ensure that lessons observed cover a representative spectrum of languages, course types and levels.
- The focus of observation is on the teaching in general and not the performance of individual teachers, i.e. inspectors aim to carry out an overall assessment of the language centre's teaching.
- Students should be informed about the purpose and conduct of lesson observation and reassured that they are not being evaluated.
- Inspectors normally observe a lesson for 15 to 20 minutes.
- Inspectors are provided with lesson plans and copies of teaching materials. For face-to-face observations, lesson plans are provided as hard copies, while for online observations plans are sent to the inspectors electronically.
- The first one or two observations are done by both inspectors together, who take time to discuss their views and reactions to the initial observations in order to ensure a common interpretation and assessment of those which follow.
- Individual teachers may be observed on more than one occasion.
- Inspectors will not take part in the lesson.
- In addition to observing teaching and evaluating lesson plans and other related documentation, inspectors also check numbers of students in the class, homogeneity of levels, and the quality of teaching, equipment and, when applicable, the virtual learning environment.

Documentary evidence

- Lesson plans, weekly/monthly/termly plans and/or schemes of work
- Attendance records, records of work completed

- 7.7 There are systems in place for regular evaluation and review of the effectiveness of all aspects of assessment methods, to ensure they remain fit for purpose.

Inspection procedures

Evidence of compliance is gathered by reviewing assessment and certification documents and in meetings with academic managers, teachers and students. Inspectors examine test and assessment instruments and check their compatibility with the course programmes. They check procedures for any in-house test design and implementation, including any relevant training for staff as well as procedures to prevent academic misconduct and cheating.
